"i expect to pass through this world

but once''

I have grown up in years of crises and have been given a ready-made alibi if alibies are what I seek. Too, I have been privileged to see some of the most dramatic happenings of all the ages. I have watched, on television, events of tremendous scope. Challenges have been given to me by far-seeing individuals. I have seen whole countries deprived overnight of their freedom and have watched struggling young nations emerge like butterflies from cocoons. I have seen great religions strive for a clearer understanding. These miracles I have witnessed and accepted as ordinary, everyday happenings of my life in this span of school years. I have been told that I have a challenge I must meet. With varying emotions I have accepted this awesome fact — that the fate of the world, even of preserving the world, rests on my shoulders. The time is NOW. The future is not mine unless I do my best to make it a better world. Each generation has its responsibilities. How I meet them remains for history to decide. I have but one lifetime to make my mark.

It is 8:43 — two minutes before the morning bell.

It's great to be a teen-ager and to be able to do so many things at once! Anne Giles manages to put her hair up, eat, listen to the radio, and even study.

With five minutes between classes, Karen Kauffman rushes out of the library, papers flying, to beat the crowded halls.

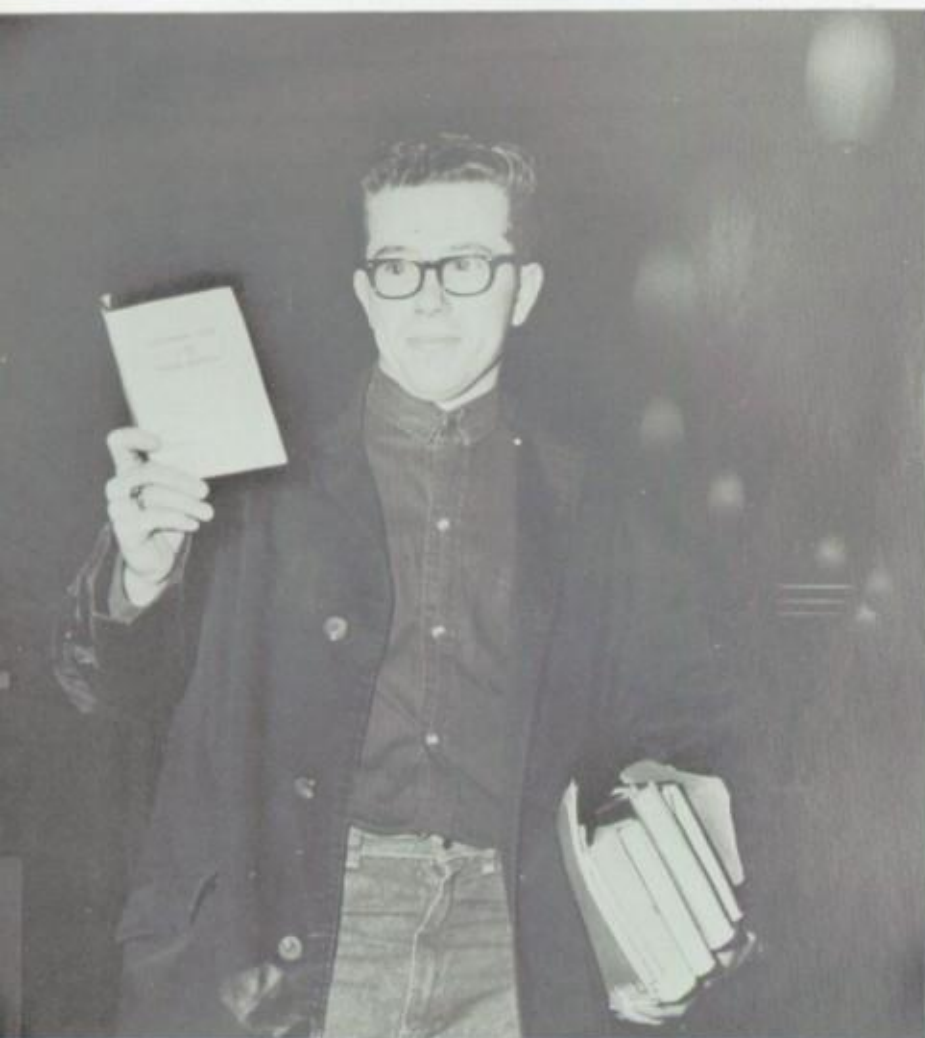

We Sought Insight

Flavor and diversity was added to the 1963-64 school year through convocations, career day, and programs dealing with college preparation. Birch Bayh, Junior Senator from Indiana, spoke to the student body about the responsibilities of living in a democracy. Other convocations ranged from a lecture on seal hunting to Vic Hyde's one-man-band. The Sunshine Society presented the Christmas convocation aided by the choir and speech department, and eight speech students, under the direction of Miss Connie Stavropulos, presented the one-act play Mother of Gesta for the Easter convocation. Career Day on October 18 was a school day devoted to assisting students in the selection of their future vocation. College-bound seniors were helped with college preparation by counseling, pamphlets, tests, and guest representatives from various colleges. On December 7, 103 students were given the Scholastic Aptitude Test, which is used for college entrance and scholarship eligibility.

Teen-age conversation — over a coke at Penguin Point or Marc's — ranges from "who's going with who" to the racial issue.

And Heeded Advice

Why so many books for Bob Adams tonight? No doubt his report card has something to do with it.

Symbolic of the American school system of today is the congeniality between a student and his teacher. Mr. Thompson and Lynda Meier talk over a recent assignment after history class.

One of the most trying tasks of a teen-ager is to decide what he wants to do in his adult life. In the CCJHS guidance department, councilors take time to talk with and advise students on a suitable vocation, as Mrs. Bennett and Debbie Brueckner are doing.

Prior to leaving for Baer Field, Senator Bayh stops briefly to answer Lynn Barry's question.

Fun and Fads Sprinkled School Routine

"How was the history test?" "Did you see 'Mr. Novak' last night?" Lunch time is a happily anticipated interval in the day.

City hall dances began featuring live combos like the "Clansmen." Lynne Barry and John LeFever twist at the February 7 "Coachmen's Ball."

It begins with a lively pep session, which leads to purchasing a ticket for the game. School spirit unites the students and adds fun to the daily routine.

With Spice

Seniors line up. Familiar places, clubs, activities, and sports are brightly displayed on Senior "cords."

"During the activity period, the FTA will meet in . . ." Mr. Gandy's announcements begin homeroom period on Friday. Students study, read their Eagles, attend announced meetings, and sometimes talk over the evening's plans.

We awaited England's new singing sensation, "The Beatles," while the outside world seethed with the segregation problem in the South, and the world conflict in Viet Nam. Folk songs, hootenannies, and a new kind of "twist" reached popularity in our teen-age world. City hall dances produced such wild door prizes as a live turkey! Elephant jokes plagued the nation as the latest form of humor. "Do you know how to get six elephants into a volkswagon?" "Put three in the front and three in the back—Stupid!" In May the Junior-Senior Prom highlighted the year with that touch of fantasy, while the world raged with the threat of communism. We watched the United States and Panamanian relationship crumble, and realized it was touched off by youth. We saw young men entering politics, realized youth were in the news and strove to become a worthy part of it.

"What a cool record!" "Oh, you like Bobby Rydell?" The street dance in August brought the high school set together just before school opened in the fall.

"Whereas the traditional Freshmen Day will be held this Friday, December 13, and whereas certain rules must be followed, therefore . . ." It was a lucky day for seniors, but not for the freshmen. Poor freshie!

We Strove to Build Character

Jeanne Alvarez, chosen by the Senior class for the DAR award, and Jeanne Ernst, Betty Crocker award winner, glance quickly over the college information posted on the board.

Competing in a state-wide contest, Marla Miller received the first place trophy for her performance at the Indiana State Fair.

To spur us on to greater achievements, our nation, state, community, and school presented awards to students excelling in particular areas.

Institutes and workshops during the summer months offered an outside time for learning in addition to many valuable experiences. Our varsity cheerleaders attended Smith-Walbridge Cheerleading Camp in Syracuse, Indiana, while the president and vice president of the sunshine society attended the sunshine camp at Delphi, Indiana. Indiana University was the site of the two-week Journalism Institute for the editors of the Columbian. At the awards dinner, Susie Duncan was presented a good citizenship certificate. Numerous students in band and choir emerged with superior ratings in the district music contests and were thus qualified for state competition.

Mr. King presents Mike Andrews with the certificate signifying that he is among the 1600 finalists in the Scholastic Aptitude Test.

Our Town And Its

Our town, like thousands of other small towns in the American tradition, is concerned with the cultivation of youthful minds through constantly improving recreational and educational facilities. The Burnworth Memorial Swimming Pool, a welcome refuge from the hot summer sun, is a favorite meeting place for swimming enthusiasts. The local 4-H club helps its participants to widen their interests, develop socially, pursue individual hobbies, and "learn by doing."

Splashing summer fun attracts many high school students to the Burnworth Memorial Pool. The girls work on tans while the boys practice on the high dive.

After school hours many CCJHS students work a local stores. John Easterday marks prices on canned goods, one of his responsibilities while working at the local Kroger store.

Functions Aided Us

The Golden Cue Recreation Center, a recent addition to Columbia City, is owned and managed by Bill Vance and Bill Parker. The new center contains five pastel-colored billiard tables designed to please feminine tastes as well as masculine. The Teen Canteen, supervised by Mr. and Mrs. Dave Spence, provides recreation for students on Wednesday and Saturday evenings. Endless shelves of knowledge can be found in the Peabody Free Library, where students spend many after-school hours. The home of the late Thomas R. Marshall, a former Indiana governor and U. S. vice president under Woodrow Wilson, has been transformed into the Whitley County Historical Museum.

"Oh, another term paper!" many a CCJHS student has cried. After school, many students retreat to the Peabody Free Library, where a wealth of information for term papers and special reports is available.

Which one shall it be — Peter, Paul, and Mary or Paul, George, John, and Ringo? Andrea Eberhard ponders over this question while at the Canteen.

Among the events at Old Settler's Day is the Miss Columbia City Popularity Contest. Chosen by their classes, Miss Columbia City and her attendants are front row: Mary Ann Yohe, Kaydean Sheets, Miss CC; Connie Fisher. Rack row; Marcia Holloway, Lana Kaufman, Joanne Motz, Anita Dygert, Carole Cleland, Sylvia Binkley.

"let me not defer or neglect it"

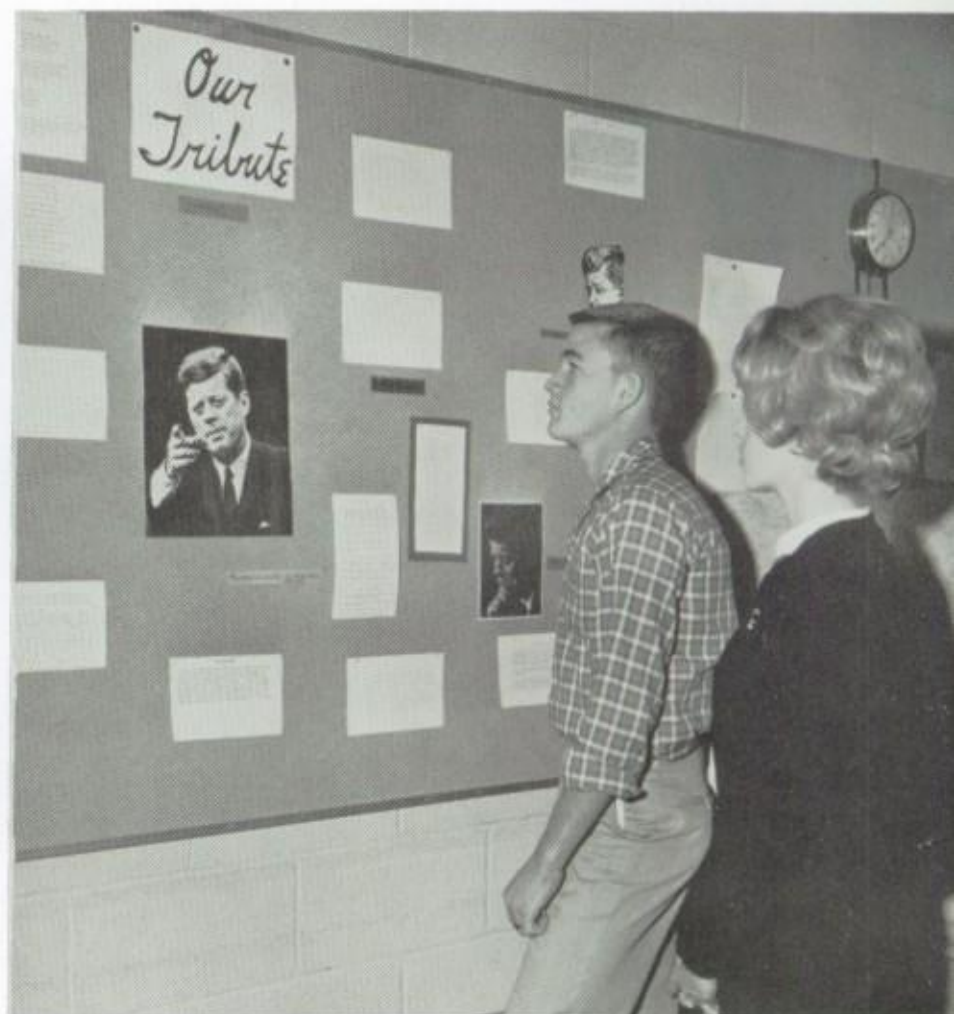

I, one of the 1030 students of CCJHS, along with millions of other young men and women across the nation, was brought to shocked realization of neglect of civic duties and responsibilities and the results thereof in November. The assassination of the President of our great country brought to mind the assassination of another President, who also had ideals of equality for all mankind. It was pointed out in flaming words and editorials that neglect and reticence to speak out at times when violence, hatred, and prejudice were rampant were the basic reasons for this senseless crime. I was brought to an abrupt realization of my responsibilities. Knowledge is the lamp of the world. Through study, I can gain greater knowledge and understanding so that my country will not again experience this shame. "Let me not defer or neglect it."

Lois Orcutt, a Senior at CCJHS, spends some after school hours on homework.

A six-weeks study course to accelerate reading proves a helpful course to seniors. Dena Chapman, trying to keep ahead of the accelerator bar, reads speedily down the page.

The senior English class contributed to the many tributes in honor of President Kennedy. Juniors, Phyllis Galbraith and Eddie Hollenbaugh, solemnly view the bulletin board of original poems and short eulogies.

Spoken and Written Thoughts Develop Minds

"In short there's simply not a spot like Camelot." The drama-filled days following the assassination of President Kennedy assumed a special meaning to those English students who had just a few days before seen Camelot in Ft. Wayne. Mrs. Kennedy referred to these words as being the inspiration for her plans for a fitting memorial to the late President. Creative writing in our English classes, always stimulating, seemed to mean more somehow as tributes were written in class. At CCJHS, in addition to grammar, English classes offer literature in the ninth, eleventh, and twelfth grades. In the tenth grade there is a speech course, and in the senior year the college-bound students have speed-reading tests which help them to increase their aptitude for a faster perception of the written word.

After one sophomore semester of speech work, Bruce Miller and Dee Trier "perform" their semester test in the auditorium.

We Struggle with Translations and Recitation

Whether caroling in French or listening to news from our Spanish-speaking neighboring countries, it is good to be "in the know." Spanish, French, and the ever-good basic Latin courses are offered to the students at CCJHS. The equipment in these departments is the very best. Spanish and French classes have language lab equipment which is priceless for learning correct pronunciations. Three years of Spanish, two of French, and two of Latin provide an excellent background for the students who are planning further language study in college. The visiting parents on back-to-school night were much impressed with the language department's up-to-date methods. In a world growing smaller, the importance of a superior language curriculum is self-evident.

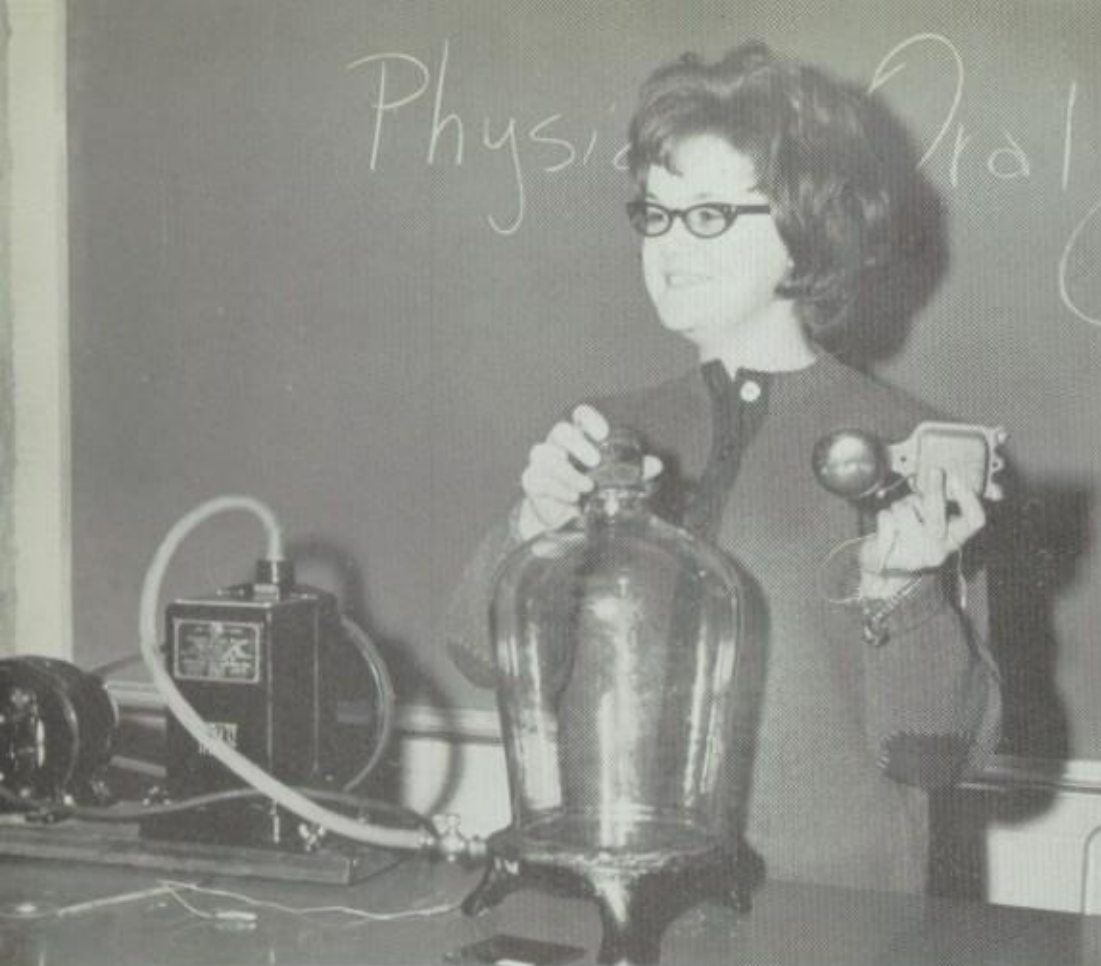

The new language lab intrigues and aids the French students in their translations and pronunciation.

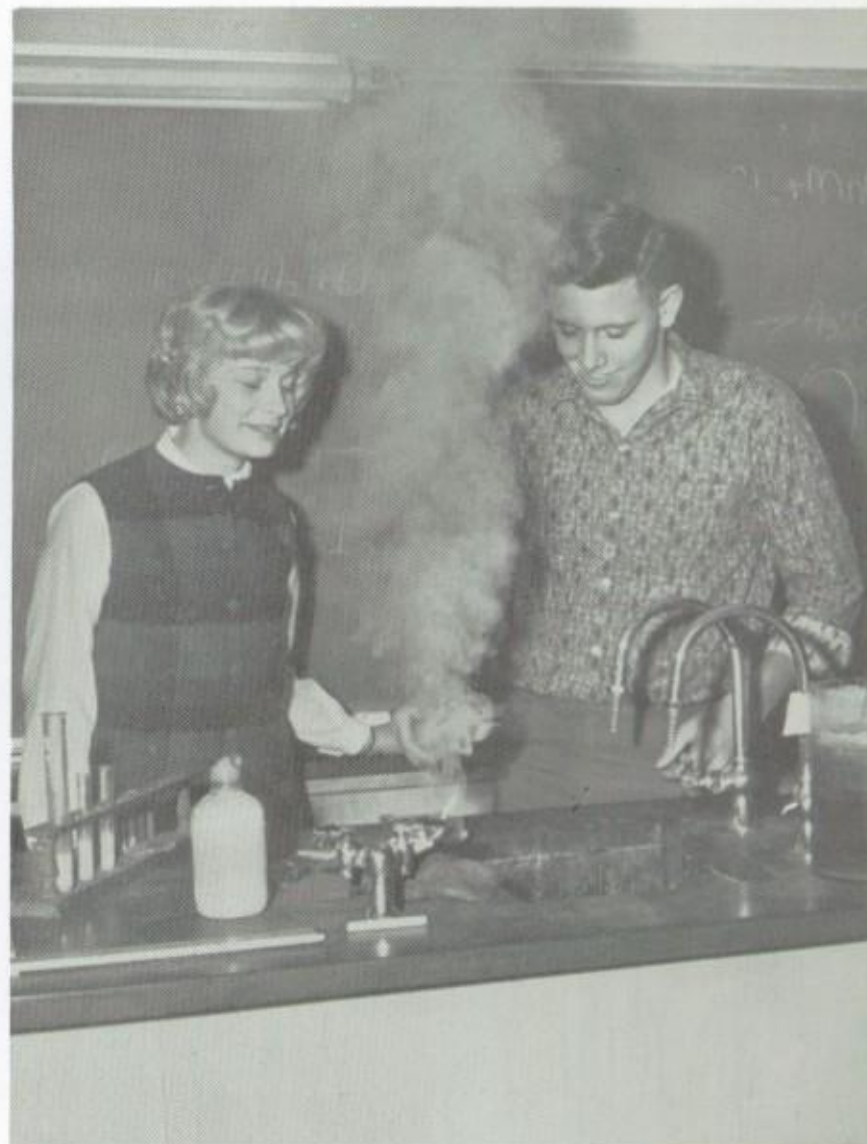

Besides lab and book work, the Spanish class gets an extra treat when Alfredo Jerves can speak to them about Ecuador.

Latin mottoes, though centuries old, are still applicable for students enrolled in first year Latin.

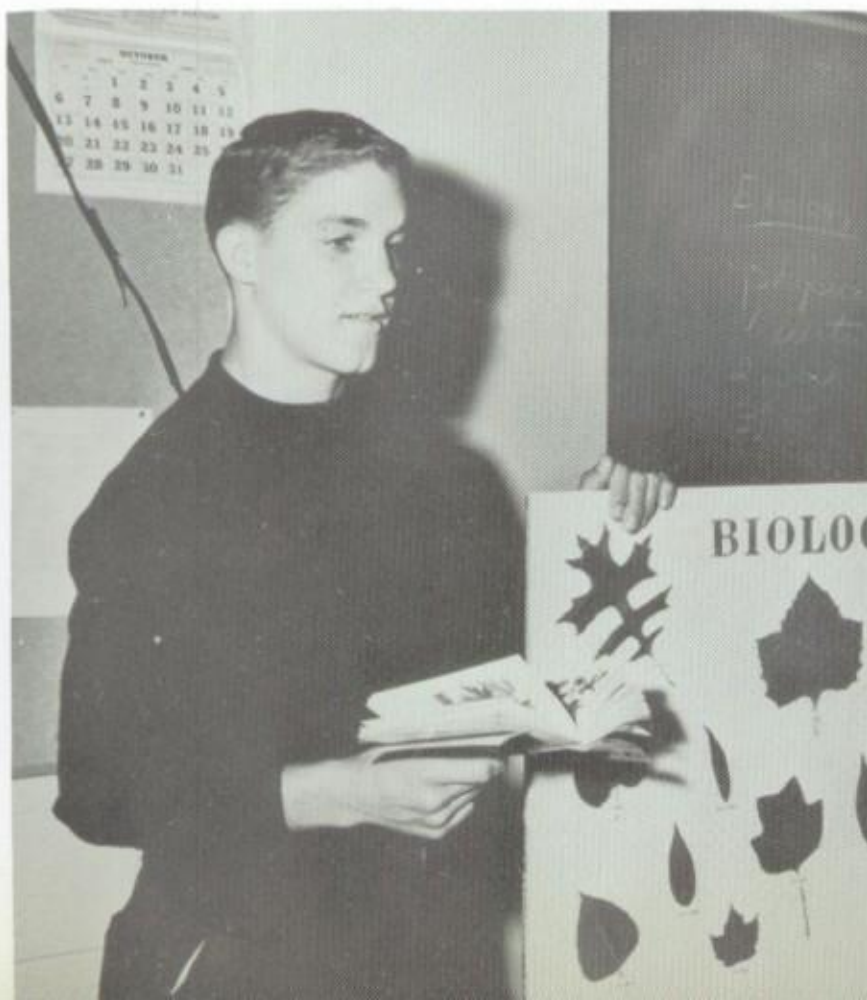

Jeanne Alvarez proves to the physics class that sound does not travel through a vacuum.

Cough! Cough! Through the smoke, Andrea Eberhard and Ken Kauffman are surprised as they watch red phosphorus burning.

Puzzling Problems in Science and Math

Gathering, mounting, and finally presenting his leaf collection, Kit Redman points out and identifies his findings to the class.

Sulfur fumes from room 10, microscopes and dissected worms, generators and $E=MC^2$ form a part of the science department. Biology, a required freshman subject, gives the student a chance to satisfy his curiosity of "What makes things tick." From the tiny amoeba to the fish in the biology room's aquarium, the students study and draw their observations. Not only is the animal world investigated, but also the plant kingdom.

Juniors and seniors in chemistry classes experimented in the well-equipped labs and wrote reports in workbooks. Beginning in the second semester, special projects made the class individualistic. Those projects which rated high enough traveled to the Regional Science Fair in the spring.

Satellites, rockets, even thoughts of going to the moon are close to the physics student. This elective subject for those taking fourth year math delves into the mysteries of heat, light, and sound. Photography is studied with CCJHS's dark room. Practical physics presents an over-all view of science. The group visited community factories for illustrations of what they studied in the classroom.

Homework becomes valuable when a problem has to be put on the board. Using the large compass for the board illustration, Alan Murphy draws his problem.

Even the smartest freshman algebra student needs help — and what a better place to get it than from a senior algebra student like Brian Sherman. Becky Orcutt works diligently with the aid of Brian's suggestions.

Induce Much Thought and Concentration

From the freshman algebra student to the senior trigonometry student, math courses are in evidence in every year of high school. Although only one year of math is required to graduate, a wide variety of math courses is offered: freshman, junior, and college algebra, plane and solid geometry, trigonometry, and general math.

Students become familiar with Pythagoras, $K = \sqrt{s(s-a)(s-b)(s-c)}$, axioms, compasses, and the sine, cosine and tangent. Skills used as the foundation for more advanced mathematics are formulated in these classes. However, practical information for other occupations is of primary importance because of the increased demand of knowledge in this field.

Preparing CCJHS students for jobs and vocations in the future rates as the greatest goal in the math department. To keep up with the fast-growing mathematical world, the math instructors are learning themselves by attending evening courses.

No one has a problem seeing the example when Mr. Burkett uses the "giant-sized" slide rule for the class.

Mr. Harold Athey, Social Security representative from Fort Wayne, speaks to Mr. Holycross's civics class on the importance of social security to youth.

Students View the World – Past, Present

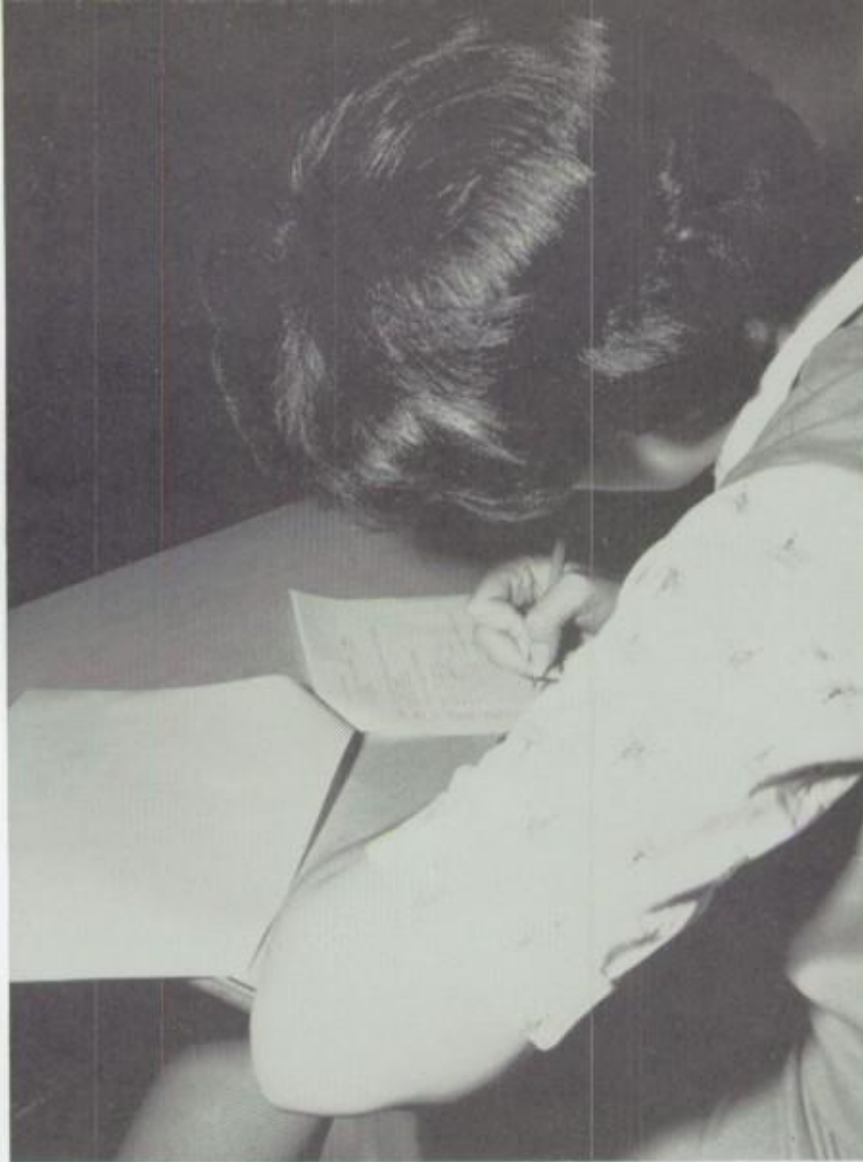

The social studies department, by working toward an awareness of past, present, and future times, is striving to teach a knowledge of the world in which we live. An understanding of the implications of events will make tomorrow's leaders more able to meet arising crises with a better perception. The daily pledge of allegiance to the flag, a comparison of democracy's principles with communism's ideals in communism workshop, and trips to political headquarters made civics classes extremely versatile. Through visual aids and modern equipment, CCJHS students are privileged to participate vicariously in the exciting events of yesterday and today and get a preview of what might lie ahead tomorrow.

Psychology classes, complete with Rorschach's ink plot, proved or disproved students' qualifications for facing up to life's demands. In economics

Both student-teacher and class are eager to learn as Miss Reynolds from Manchester College teaches U.S. History Ink blots mean a lot in psychology. Susy Alberty studies one to find out how Mr. Rorschach evaluates her personality.

Six-weeks exam! Has Peggy Coon studied? After weeks of reading, listening to lectures, participating in panels, and taking notes, students must prove what they have learned through tests.

and Future – Through Social Studies

the students delved into the stock market with make-believe collateral and invested in proprietorships, partnerships, or corporations to learn something of investment and profits, or losses! World history is taught in the tenth grade where students learn something of the origins, cultures, religions, and histories of various countries. Their work is carried out through projects, notebooks, reports, and lectures. Juniors are taught the exciting story of our country's development in U.S. History classes. Vocational information and geography classes help to make the social studies department complete. Thus, by working toward an awareness of past, present, and future, the social studies instructors hope to assist the young people of today in becoming the well-informed and valuable citizens of tomorrow's world.

Economics class pays off! Lyndal Clavert glances through The Wall Street Journal after making $2,028. Unfortunately she and Sandy Ellis did not invest real money. It was fun anyway.

Imagination and Skill Produce Creativeness

Self-expression finds a medium in creativeness. Imagination and skill combine in art, music, technical arts, and dramatics to produce for both participant and beholder many rewarding hours of pleasure and beauty. Concerts, contests, pep sessions, and contributions to school activities are the accepted roles of music students. Art students learn to express themselves through design and symmetry. Attention to detail and neatness are marks of the draftsman. Dramatics, since time began, has offered to both the actor and the audience an escape from the world of everyday, and CCJHS students have responded, en masse, to its appeal.

Practicing around the piano are Mary Johnson, Peggy Gregg, Connie Trier, Carole Cleland, Joanne Bates, and Lana Kauffman.

Third period dramatics class paints scenery for their one act presentation of the "Message from Khufu."

Secretarial students are putting the motto on the board into practice as they type letters on the new Selectrics.

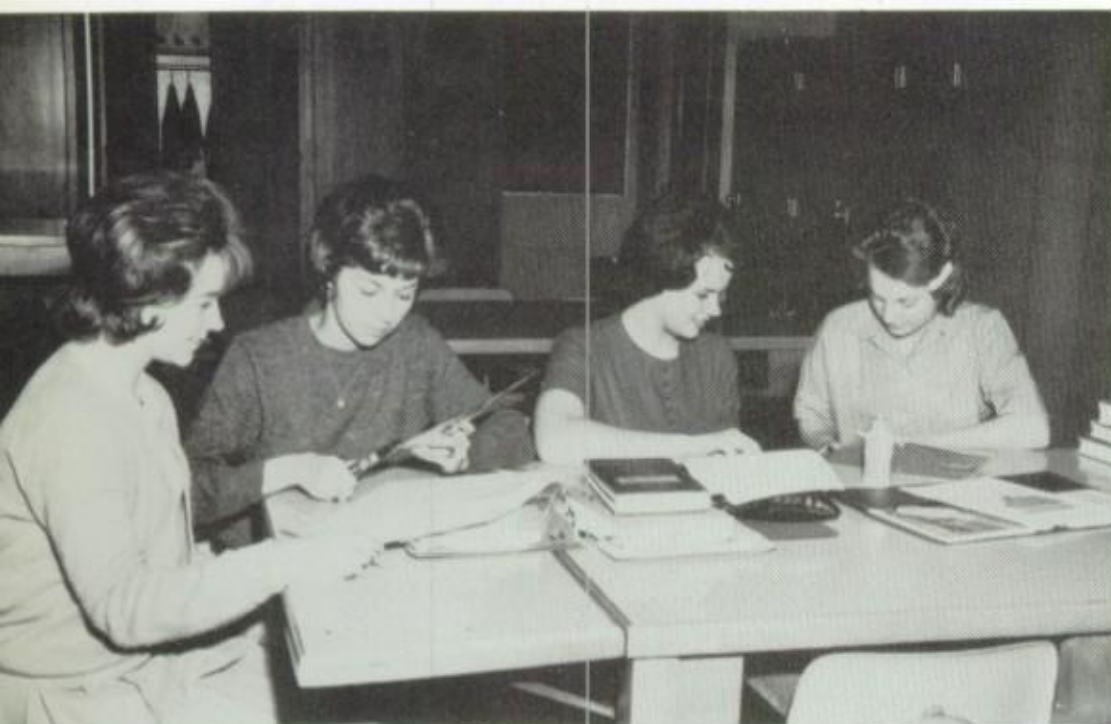

Students Take Glimpse of the Business World

Offering courses from the freshman through the senior year, the commercial department meets the needs of students who are interested in learning about the business world. General business initiates freshmen in vocational practices and personal business methods. From there, interested students may select from a number of advanced courses. Bookkeeping emphasizes assets and liabilities, debits and credits, and tax information. Shorthand teaches a faster method of writing useful to those taking dictation. During second year shorthand, students learn to transcribe and type neat copies of letters. In typing, all students master the keys for neater themes, letters, and reports. Commercial math and business English offer special information to business majors. Advanced secretarial students who have had shorthand qualify for secretarial science and learn to use comptometers, calculators, ten-key adding machines, transcribing and duplicating equipment. Other students select office practice for advanced typing, filing and other clerical duties.

Secretarial science students, like their counterparts, punch the time clock before leaving for the next period class.

Vocational Classes Prepare Us By

Scissors, glue, colored paper and pictures scattered across the table are essentials for the home economics girls when assembling a notebook on line and design.

In the food labs Marlene Loe and Nancy Hillogoss, juniors, create a tasty desert in third year home economics class.

In assuming the responsibilities of the adult world, many of us will be raising families of our own. Learning the responsibilities of managing and striving for an ideal home are difficult tasks without proper guidance. The food labs, sewing room and lounge area provide interested girls an opportunity to obtain these important aspects of home life.

The first year students receive general information including foods, clothing, housing, health, child development, family relationships, and home economics careers. Each year following the first one emphasizes advanced information on nutrition, home nursing, and the other areas included in first year classes. Besides making wool garments, budgeting, and discussing home management, the fourth year home economics class experiment in preparing foods in many different ways.

"At least it's beating", chuckles Lynn Barnes as Mary Gerdes offers her arm for practice as the home economics girls learn to take pulse rates.

A sewing student must know much more than just how to sew a straight seam. Freshman Sandra Shaw skillfully finishes her skirt in the sewing room.

Experiences and Practice

Jim Johnston, Dave Hey, and Dale Mills discuss the progress of a project in woodworking class.

Two hard working shop class members strike a bead on one of their welding projects.

Separated from the main building, the boys' vocational department meets and works. Woodworking I and II deals with the basic and advanced fundamentals of machinery and hand tools. During the last six-weeks, a new project was initiated. The boys built scale model homes and studied construction techniques.

In Machine Shop I and II students learn how to run lathes and other types of equipment.

Machine and architectural drafting and blue print reading are taught in the beginning and advanced drafting courses.

Agriculture students use the classroom and the out of doors as they study animal husbandry, soils, crops, farm management and financing.

FFA MEMBERS are shown here harvesting sorghum which will later be transported to Berne to be processed.

Classes Stress Physical Fitness Program

In health it is important to know the inside as well as the outside of the human body. "Oscar" — CCJHS skelton made it easier for Carol Gordon, Pat Smith, and Margaret Wells.

"Let me say this about that . . ." And did he ever! President Kennedy's physical fitness program managed to affect all of us, even if it was just watching the gym classes doing their exercises. Special standards issued by the government are used to see how we CCJHS students measure up to the average American. The result? Some do; others don't, but most everyone ends up sore and somewhat weak.

Besides the exercises, physical education class, a required freshman and sophomore course, engage in outdoor and indoor sports. Tennis, swimming, soccer, and baseball provide us with a chance to become familiar and even master many sports.

During the winter months, the gym replaces outdoor activities. Divided by the all-familiar curtain called the "parachute", the gym becomes a place to participate in basketball, volleyball, tumbling, trampoline jumping, and weight-lifting.

Physical fitness by classroom means films, examples, and books of the human body and its functions. Ways to keep our bodies strong and able are taught and discussed in health class.

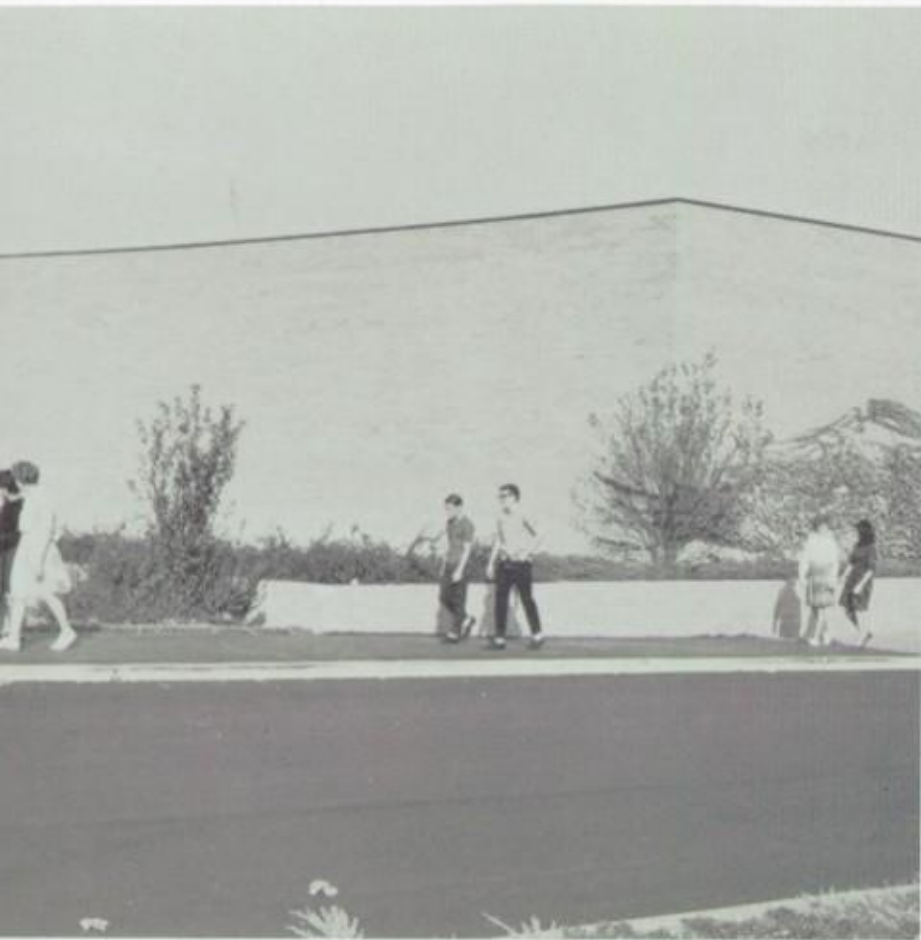

In this way, through classroom learning and actual experience, CCJHS grasps the true meaning of the importance of physical fitness.

1-2-3 and up! Max Bowers proudly raises the weights above his head in physical education class.

Physical education class proves the importance of exercise. Healthy Americans mean a stronger nation.

During the twenty minute break, some summer school students step out for a short walk and a coke at the station.

Remembering safety precautions learned in Drivers' training during the summer, Linda Sullivan fastens her seat belt before driving off on a mid-winter day.

Summer School Expands Curriculum

"Happy day, school's out," is a familiar cry at the end of May, but not for all. The summer school program was expanded so that anyone desiring to take the eight-week, two-semester course could if fifteen others were interested. In 1963 school officials recorded 456 students enrolled, taking courses in biology, United States history, world history, typing, and driver's training. Approximately twenty faculty members taught the five courses that were offered.

While 143 students met summer requirements in the classroom, a total of 303 students chose to "drive-out" their requisites in the two week driver's training program. From early morning until evening, seven cars and ten faculty members taught an enthusiastic 15 to 17 year old set the techniques of driving. Dr. Bennett, school superintendent, stated that summer driver's training courses prevented bad weather from interfering with the instruction.

A year round program of education broadens the opportunities for CCJHS students to keep up with the world of today.

While others swim or go on picnics, Tam Estlick, a summer school student, finds it necessary to resist all summer temptations and practice typing.

"any good, therefore, that i can do . . . let me

do it now"

Youthful enthusiasm and vitality need outlets. Here at CCJHS I am fortunate indeed to have so many opportunities for self-expression. Whether my avocation is the arts or sports, my school has extensive facilities and capable instructors. There is so much I want to do. Classroom learning has made up only a fragment of my life here. School lights have burned well into the evening as organizations have met, and sportsmen have practiced. I have been offered opportunities for leadership, co-operation, and friendship. I have developed my own skills and discovered new ones. Beyond this, I have given of my self to the community and have found that by giving, I can appreciate what my community and school have given me. "Any good, therefore, that I can do let me do it now."

This is the "Telephone Hour," Act I, Scene II from the Senior Class Play, Bye, Bye Birdie.

Each year seniors who have maintained a high scholastic average during their tenure at C.C.J.H.S. are selected as members of the National Honor Society. This year the largest group of seniors ever chosen received this honor.

Having as its purpose the encouragement of students outstanding in scholarship, service, leadership and character, the National Honor Society of Secondary Schools was founded in 1921.

Members of the National Honor Society are preferred candidates for a college scholarship and admission to college.

The society administers a scholarship fund and provides scholarships, awards, and certificates of merit to outstanding students going to college.

Forum Trains Tomorrow's Leaders

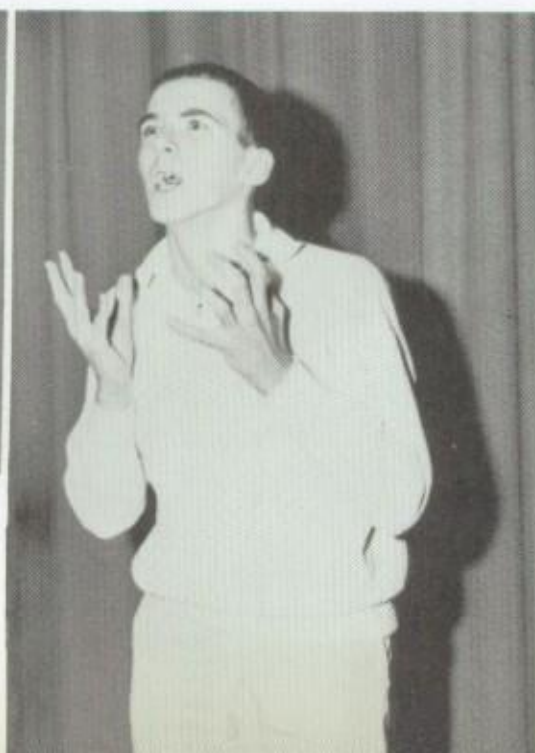

The Debate teams spent many, long practice hours in preparation for their frequent Debate meets. Obtaining many honors, and striving for higher achievements, the fourteen Debate members forged ahead in their work.

After nightly practices and many interscholastic speech meets, the Forum members having accumulated twenty-five NFL points are eligible to receive membership into the National Forensic League. Providing encouragement and incentive, NFL trains today's youth to become tomorrow's leaders through practice in learning to speak concisely and meaningfully.

Carolyn DeMoney portrays Noah in a speech from "Green Pastures". Here, she is characterizing Noah's reaction to being commanded to build an ark and take aboard two of every animal, as she says, "... and snakes, Lord?"

Robert Croghan takes a dramatic role in, "Picture of Dorian Gray", written by Oscar Wilde. As he tries to convey the serious impact of the oration, his audience waits with anticipation.

The Student Council of Columbia City Joint High School was established in 1959. Its primary objective was to promote better understanding between the students and the administration. The Council also worked to uphold school traditions and policies and to support school activities.

Members of the Student Council are to represent the homeroom from which he or she is chosen. The president and vice-president of each class are automatically included in the Council. The Student Council is the voice of the students.

Students Plan Education As Profession

Jean Pumphrey, future teacher, explains the bookkeeping chart to two puzzled students during Career Teaching Month.

To become a member of FTA, one must be in the upper three grades, plan teaching as a career, pay the annual dues of 70 cents, and be in the college curriculum.

This year FTA is planning a dance in February, a spring banquet and there will be a convention at Ball State later in the year. Four members of the CCJHS FTA attended a fall state convention at Warren Central High School near Indianapolis.

The officers representing the FTA chapter are: president, Jeff Ott; vice-president, Joe Zickgraf; secretary, Joanne Bates; treasurer, Jill Whiteleather; reporter, Jane Geiger; librarian, Trish Walter.

Future Farmers of America members are boys interested in farming as a future. The FFA members, this year, worked on various money making projects. They planted a field of corn at Morsches Park. Part of the proceeds were used to pay the city for the land. The remainder was used to sponsor an achievement trip this summer. The selling of sorgham was a very successful money making project. Among recreation projects were a skating party, an FFA speech contest and a pest contest. During FFA week in February, the members presented corsages to the women teachers of the school.

Your Home — Key to the Future

To obtain an honor charter this year the Future Homemakers of America must reach certain goals. Among these are keeping a historical scrapbook, writing two articles for a magazine, putting on skits, and doing a good deed each day during FHA week. At Christmas and Valentine's day the girls collected cards to send to the state school. The FHA District Convention took place at CCJHS in October where 500 members, officers, advisors, and mothers attended. The theme of the convention, "Your Home — Key to the Future" was carried through the entire convention. There was another district convention in March away from home. Senior members of FHA will have an end of the year trip. During the summer, members of FHA will attend a state meeting at Indiana University. The sponsorship of FHA was assumed by Mrs. Witmer.

The officers for FHA were: Judy Waugh, president; Peggy Gregg, vice-president; secretary, Nancy Grant; treasurer, Rita Ferber; reporter, Sharon Dexter.

Sunshine Girls Give of Themselves

The year started with the initiation early in October. In November "The Last Leaf" was the theme of the annual dance.

Other activities included choosing an Ideal Lady at a tea in the spring. The girls prepared Thanksgiving baskets and Christmas gifts for the needy. The Riley Drive and giving of Christmas gifts to the State School were two more of the girls' projects.

Girls' Athletic Association Tumbles,

"Sink that ball," "Let's have a strike," were calls heard by GAA girls throughout the year. The purpose of the GAA program was to stimulate physical fitness in accordance with the late President Kennedy's physical fitness program.

Girls could choose a minimum of one sport, basketball, bowling, or tumbling, in which to participate. Extra activities such as swimming, hiking, horseback riding, and softball were acknowledged with extra points. Awards were given at the close of the year to those having high points.

Bowling was the first sport played in the year. Each of the fifty girls who bowled played two games a week at Cook's Bowling Alley. Some of the high bowlers were Sandy Ellis, Joanne Bates, Jill Whiteleather, Lana Kaufman and Connie Trier.

The officers who were elected in the fall were Jo Ellen Zumbrun, president; Linda Zumbrun, vice-president; June Guisinger, point secretary; Joanne Bates, treasurer; Jane Johnson, reporter. Miss Shirley Hood, physical education teacher, was the sponsor.

Struggling through another year of inter-school competition in basketball, the Boys' Athletic Association had a good season.

They battled their way through three months of exciting game action, striving toward physical fitness and mental alertness. Skill and coordination being foremost, the boys also learned the importance of good sportsmanship. They learned how to take both victory and defeat in stride.

Almost any Monday or Tuesday night you might have seen the BAA boys racing back and forth on the basketball court. On the bench, you might have seen boys waiting anxiously for the chance to get into the game and score.

At the end of the season, the team that had won the most games was crowned champion. The instructor this year was Mr. Ronald Smith.

"Hey Look Us Over. . ." Sings the Cheerblock in Support of Our Eagles

Loyally bolstering the team's morale, the Cheerblock stood behind our Eagles all the way. With two hundred thirty two members joining the regiment of rooters, the Cheerblock was headed and directed by Mrs. Caroline Bennett.

Gold vests, dark skirts, long-sleeved white blouses, and "Go Eagles Go" buttons identified each block member. During the tournaments, the cheerleaders furnished each member with maroon and gold crepe paper shakers.

The Cheerblock presented pins and corsages to each of the varsity cheerleaders in appreciation for their time and effort.

Boosters Sell Goodies To Hungry Sports Fans

Famished fans flock to the stands, as invariably they leave the young innocents on the outside looking in.

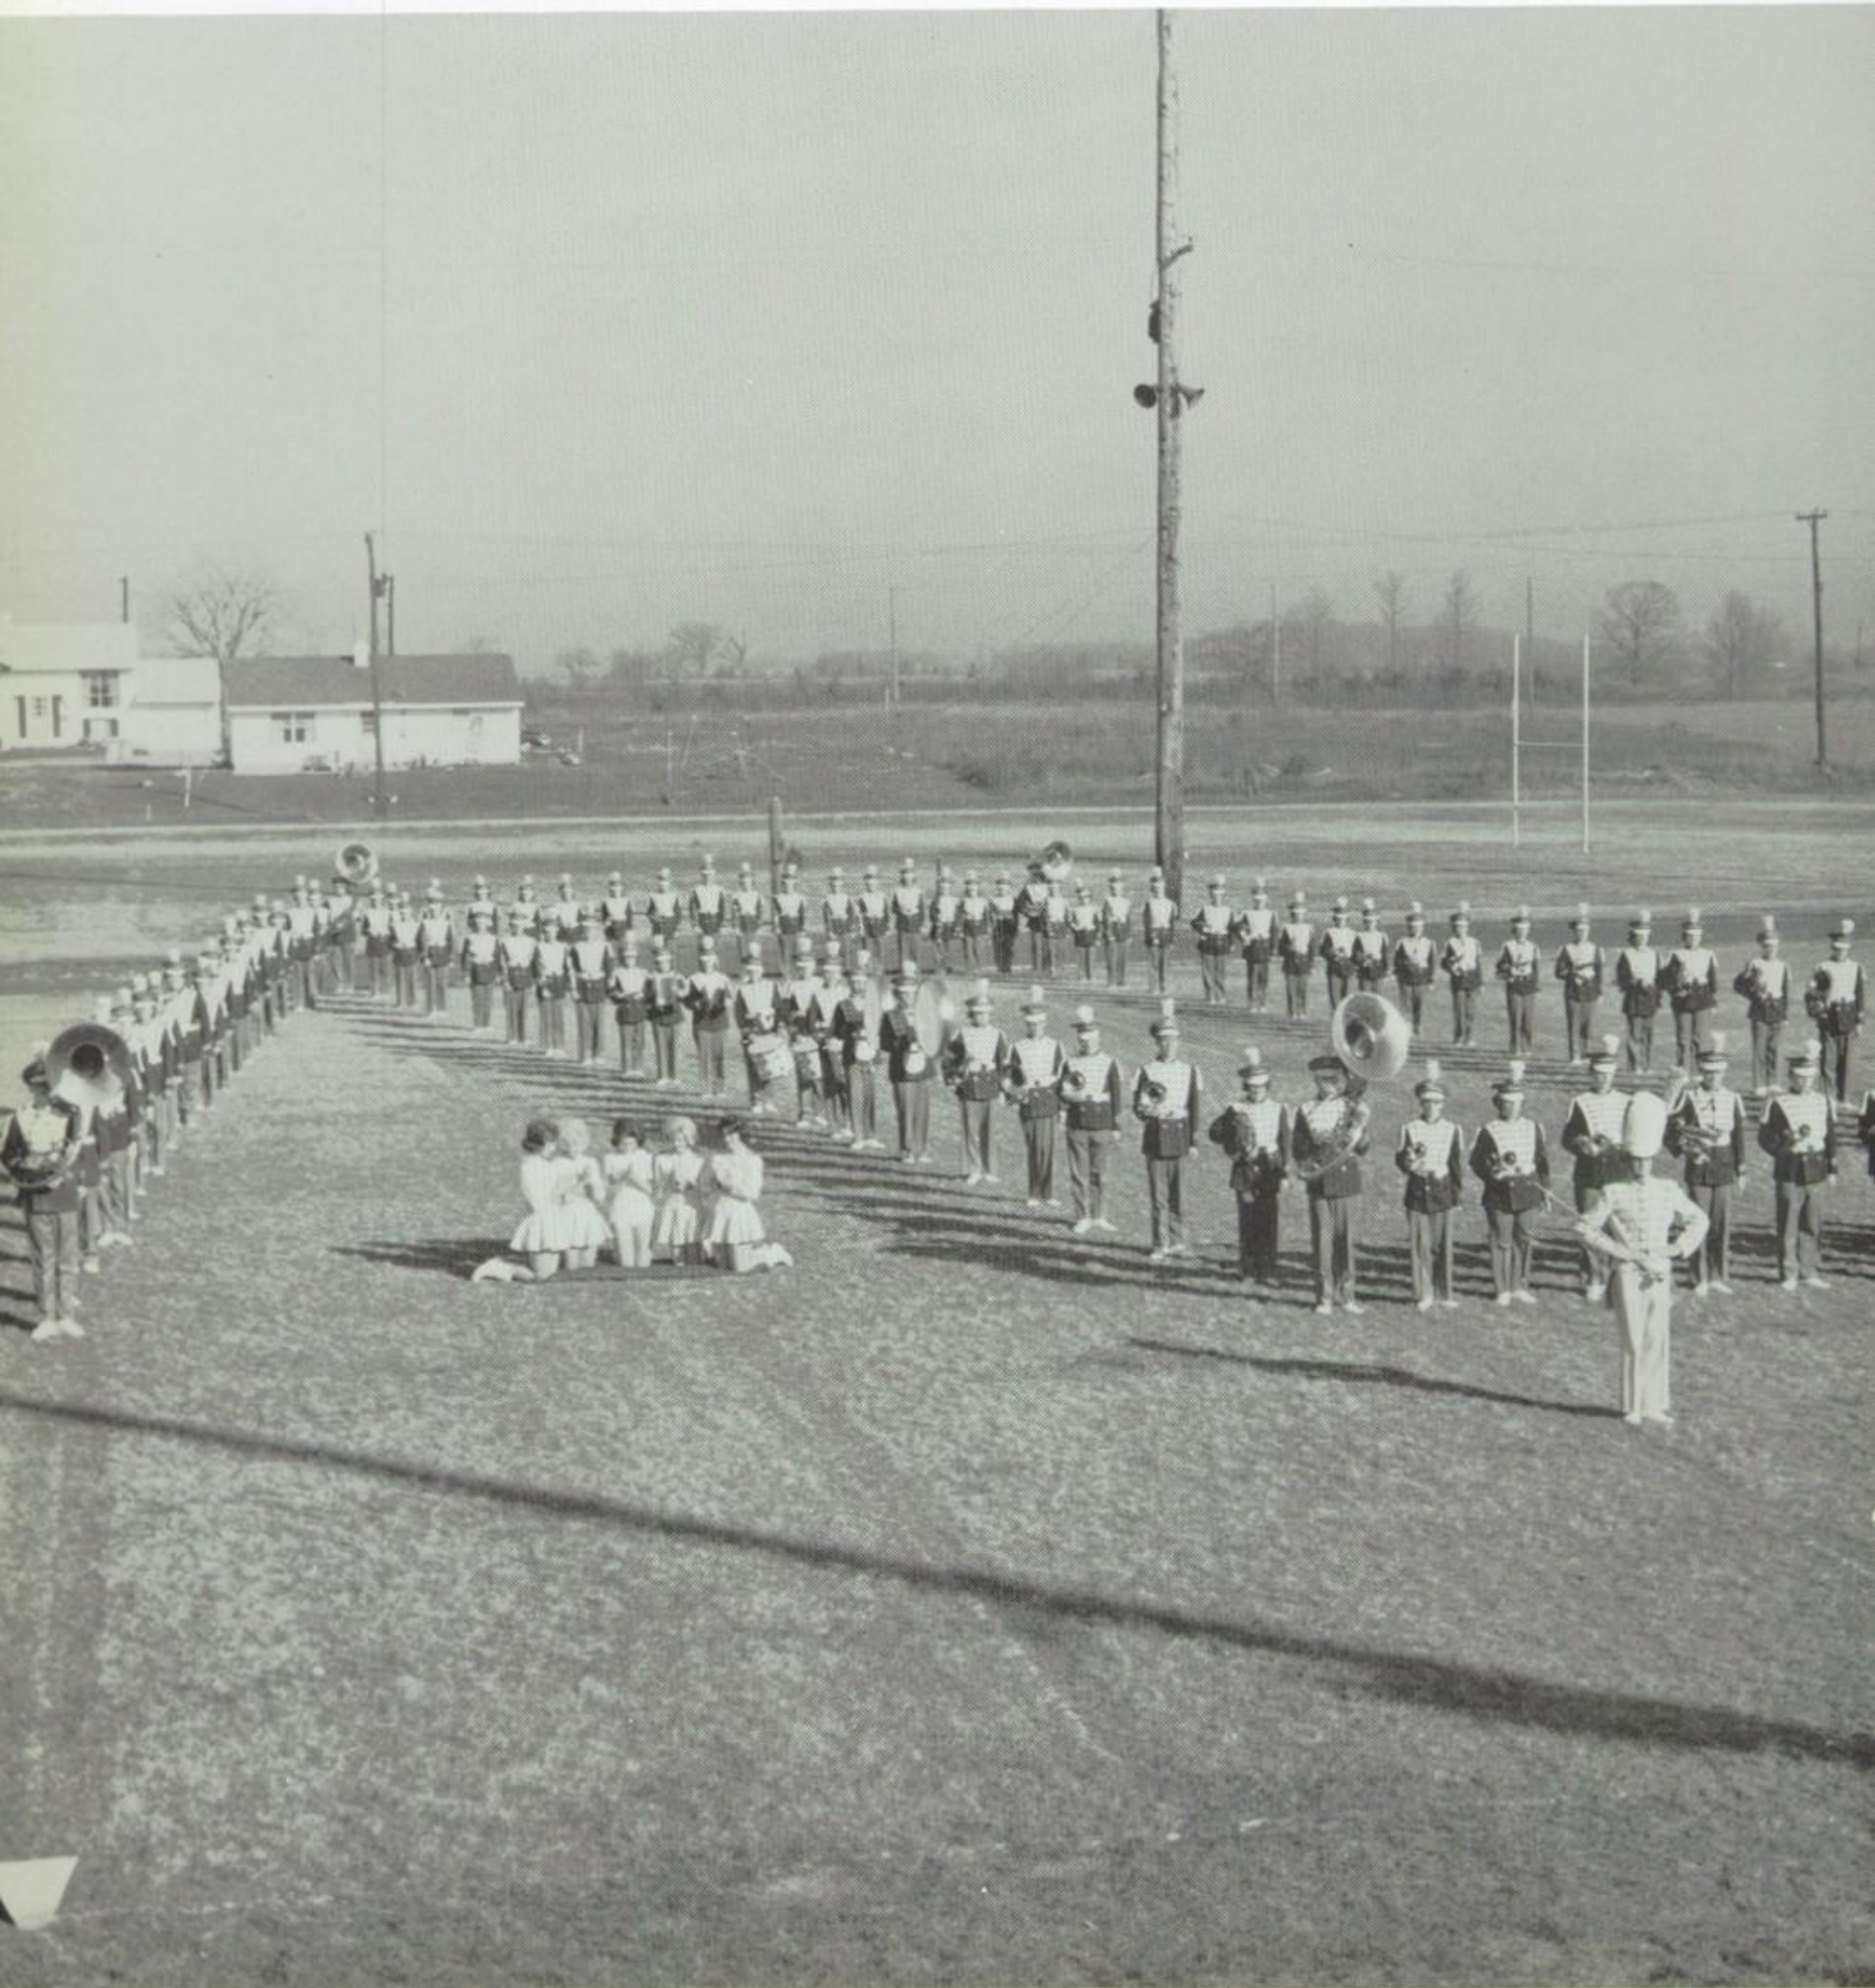

Decked out in sweaters of maroon and gold, the twenty Booster members, sponsored by Mr. Tom Drew, added their own special touch to our home football and basketball games. Revitalizing and replenishing the half-time crowds, the Boosters also circulated among the spectators to restore those too engrossed to patronize the stands. Work still remained, even after all had left the game, for the Boosters committed themselves to cleaning up their stands and putting away their equipment.

Turning in their proceeds to the general office, the Booster Club allotted $200 this year for the speech department's needs, and $300 for the travelling expenses of the Golden Eagle Band. The balance of the Booster treasury was spent in assisting any other extra curricular activity in financial difficulty.

Golden Eagle Marching Band

Takes Top Honors at Two Contests

Under first-year drum major, Roger Gumm, the one hundred-piece Golden Eagle Marching Band completed one of its most successful seasons this past year.

On September 18, to the tune of "Anchors Aweigh," the band placed first in a field of twenty participants in the Bluffton Street Fair marching contest, an event which Hartford City had dominated for many years. Three days later, the marchers attended Band Day at Ball State Teachers' College where they played in a combined band consisting of forty-two groups from all over the state and viewed the Ball State-Western Michigan football game. The climax of the marching season came October 5 at the State Marching Contest at North Side of Fort Wayne when the band, competing in Class A competition, received a first division rating for the first time in four years.

In addition to providing music for all home football games, the band also marched in several local parades.

Marla Miller, feature twirler, received many awards for her twirling exhibitions during the year, including a first place rating at the Indiana State Fair.

Majorettes: Margaret Auer, Gladdie Wood, Marla Miller, Sylvia Binkley, Connie Hasty.

Drum Major: Roger Gumm.

CCJHS Golden Eagle Concert Band now boasts 104 members.

CCJHS Musicians

Joining with the choir, glee club, and dance band for a Christmas concert was only one of the many activities that the concert band participated in this year. In addition to this, they presented a spring concert.

Steve Sparling, a junior, was CCJHS's representative to the summer band camp at Indiana University in July.

In the spring our band played host to other high schools, junior high schools, and grade schools in a NISBOVA contest.

The elected officers are: Jeff Ott, president; Marla Miller, vice president; Gladdie Wood, secretary. Appointed were: Sandy Ellis, uniform manager; and Cathy Kitson and Kathy Weldy, librarians.

Almost Any Time Music Can Be Heard

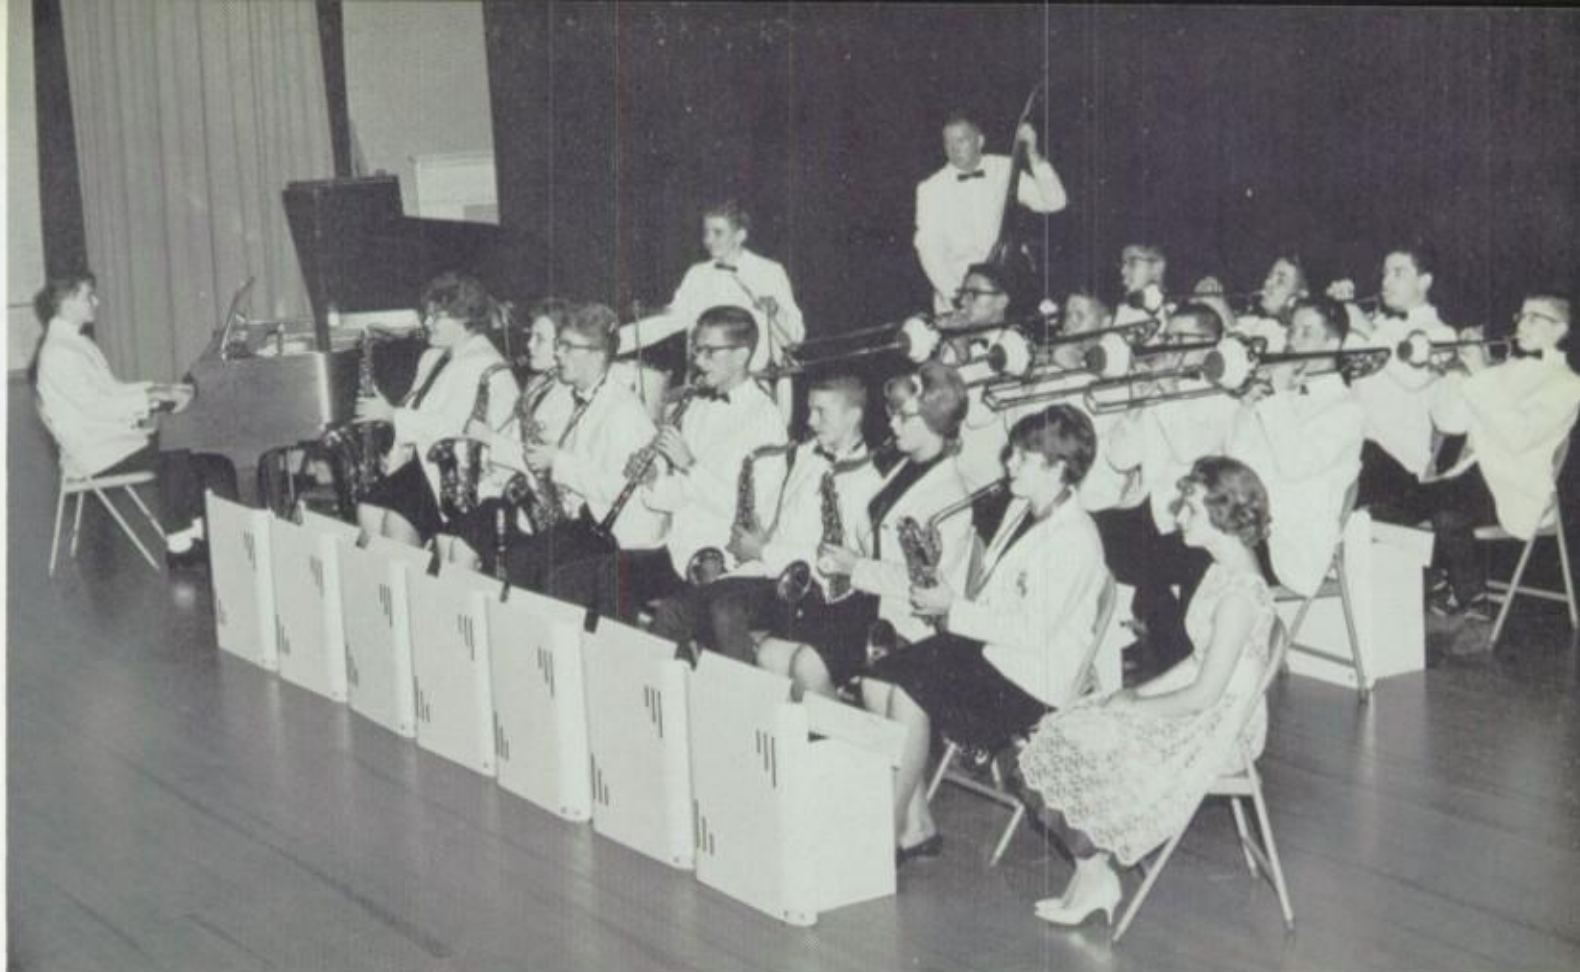

Sweet music came from the choir room this year as the choir and glee club practiced for such things as back-to-school night, the Christmas concert, which was held in conjunction with the band, and the music contests. Cheryl Pressler, Pat Call, and Allan McClain received superior ratings at the annual district music contest in Fort Wayne. Helping to prepare the choir for the spring contest was Miss Pence, a student teacher from Manchester College.

The choir officers this year were: secretary, Marilyn Mowrey; librarian, Susie Duncan; stage manager, J. T. Webber; and robe mistress, Carole Cleland. Accompanists were Kendra Johnson and Sandra Gamble. The glee club officers were: secretary, Nancy Sevits; librarian, Chloe Lott; stage manager, Jane Johnson; and accompanists, Connie Johnson and Jane Gregg.

Little Bands Add to Rhythm and Fun

The Sunshine dance and the prom were just two of the events at which the Dance Band performed. This year there were eighteen members in the Dance Band, directed by Mr. Keith Gnagy. They won a first at the district contest held at Northwood Junior High School in Fort Wayne and participated in the state contest at Butler University in Indianapolis on February fifteenth.

The Pep Band was also directed by Mr. Gnagy. They vigorously boosted school spirit at each home game and various pep sessions throughout the year.

Mr. Gnagy and the pep band work long hours together to supply half-time entertainment at the basketball games.

Off stage, Bob Rindfusz gets directions from Mr. Moore, who is in the projection room working with lighting.

Seniors Present Musical

With the combined efforts of musicians, dancers, drama enthusiasts, stage managers, and lighting technicians, the Senior Class of 1964 presented Columbia City's first musical comedy, Bye Bye Birdie. Mr. Ray Moore directed the satire on modern "rock n' roll" performers, while Mr. Bernard Butt directed the chorus and Mr. Keith Gnagy the Golden Eagle Dance Band. There were two evening performances and, due to the overwhelming request for tickets, two matinees.

The principal characters in Bye Bye Birdie were Conrad Birdie, the "rock n' roll" idol who is about to find himself out of circulation, played by Tex Smith and David Merritt; Albert Peterson, Conrad's publisher, played by Jon Schubert; Rosie Alvarez, Albert's scheming, love-struck secretary, played by Susie Duncan and Tami Pittenger; Kim MacAfee, played by Rita Kohne and Mary Johnson; and Mae Peterson, Albert's mother, played by Lyndal Calvert and Becky Frazier. Mr. Moore reported that over 90 participated in the production.

"Oh, one last kiss," sings Tex Smith in his "Conrad" manner, as Rita Kohne looks up admiringly.

The "Bye Bye Birdie" orchestra plays "You Gotta Be Sincere" for the Courthouse Scene, well known for its fainting females.

Future Scientists Explore Service Areas

Phy-Chem Club gives students an opportunity to broaden their perspective of the futures of scientific careers. Their programs consist of films projects, field trips, and demonstrations pertaining to chemistry, electronics, photography, and civil defense.

After their programs, all members had time to pursue individual experimentation and work on extra projects, some of which were taken to the Regional Science Fair at Fort Wayne. The club's sponsor, Mr. Ford Fleck, was very well pleased with the exceptional activity of this year's members. Student Officers are president, Randall Williams; Vice-president, Don Broxon and Sec.-Treas. Jack Stellhorn.

Diversified Co-Operative Education is a program set up to help students prepare for their future occupations. Some of the occupations the students are employed in this year are: auto mechanics, nurse's aides, service station attendant, secretaries, mortician's embalmer, machinist, dental assistant, and a woodworker and millman.

Larry Benzinger was elected to serve as the president of the club with Peggy Coon as his assistant. Judy Lawson records the minutes and is the treasurer also. George Reicke is the club reporter.

Mr. Bergman, the club sponsor, holds a special class each day to help the students, by discussing with them any problems they may have in their jobs.

If you can type forty-five words per minute for ten minutes or take dictation at seventy words per minute for ten minutes with seven or less mistakes you are eligible to join the Commercial Club. The girls learn business skills by typing tests and papers to be mimeographed for the teachers.

Susan Grabner was elected to preside over the meetings with Pat Ward assisting her. Marla Miller records the minutes of the meetings and Sandy Cozad is the treasurer. Maxella Nicholson is the club reporter. Mrs. Bartels is the sponsor of the group.

Mrs. Larry Gruebeck, a secretary from Weatherhead, spoke to the club on "Tips of the Office," telling the girls about some of her experiences as a secretary.

The Eagle, weekly news media of CCJHS, brings to the students informative, interesting, and entertaining articles. This year, in addition to the regular news coverage, the Eagle is sporting two new feature columns, "Dear Hortense" and "Teacher Talk".

After spending two grueling weeks at the summer journalism institute at Indiana University, Jim Helfrich and Susy Alberty still find that it takes many long hours to create each weekly edition of the Eagle.

The first semester staff consists of: Jim Helfrich, editor-in-chief; Susy Alberty, managing editor; Sandy Ellis, business manager; Karen Platter, Judy Schultz, Judy Geiger, Ty Estlick, Mike Woods, Nancy Mullett, and Sandie Raupfer. "Columbian" Captures CCJHS Story

A yearbook is complex. It begins as a perfect plan, created by theories and techniques, and is finished only after many alterations. The Columbian symbolizes the work of the editorial and business staff and the co-operation of the whole community.

Keeping the financial status quo was the aim of the business staff. During the fall, subscriptions were taken and community businessmen contacted.

From afternoon meetings to nightly sessions, where frustrated typists, stale copy, and half-eaten hamburgers seemed predominant, the editorial staff worked on to meet deadlines. The fourteen staff members planned pictures, wrote copy, and drew up pages with help from Miss Wheeler, the advisor. The endless and unlimited goal was to strive to capture the "story of the year," which is the staffs' contribution to student memories of 1964.

"Who's this," asks Cheryl Witmer.

"Oh, that's Sally's brother," Judie Thompson replies, as the girls continue to untangle and identify the underclassmen pictures.

"Don't you know you're not supposed to let that picture bleed into the gutter?" Joanne Motz explains to Lynne Tenney as she examines a possible layout.

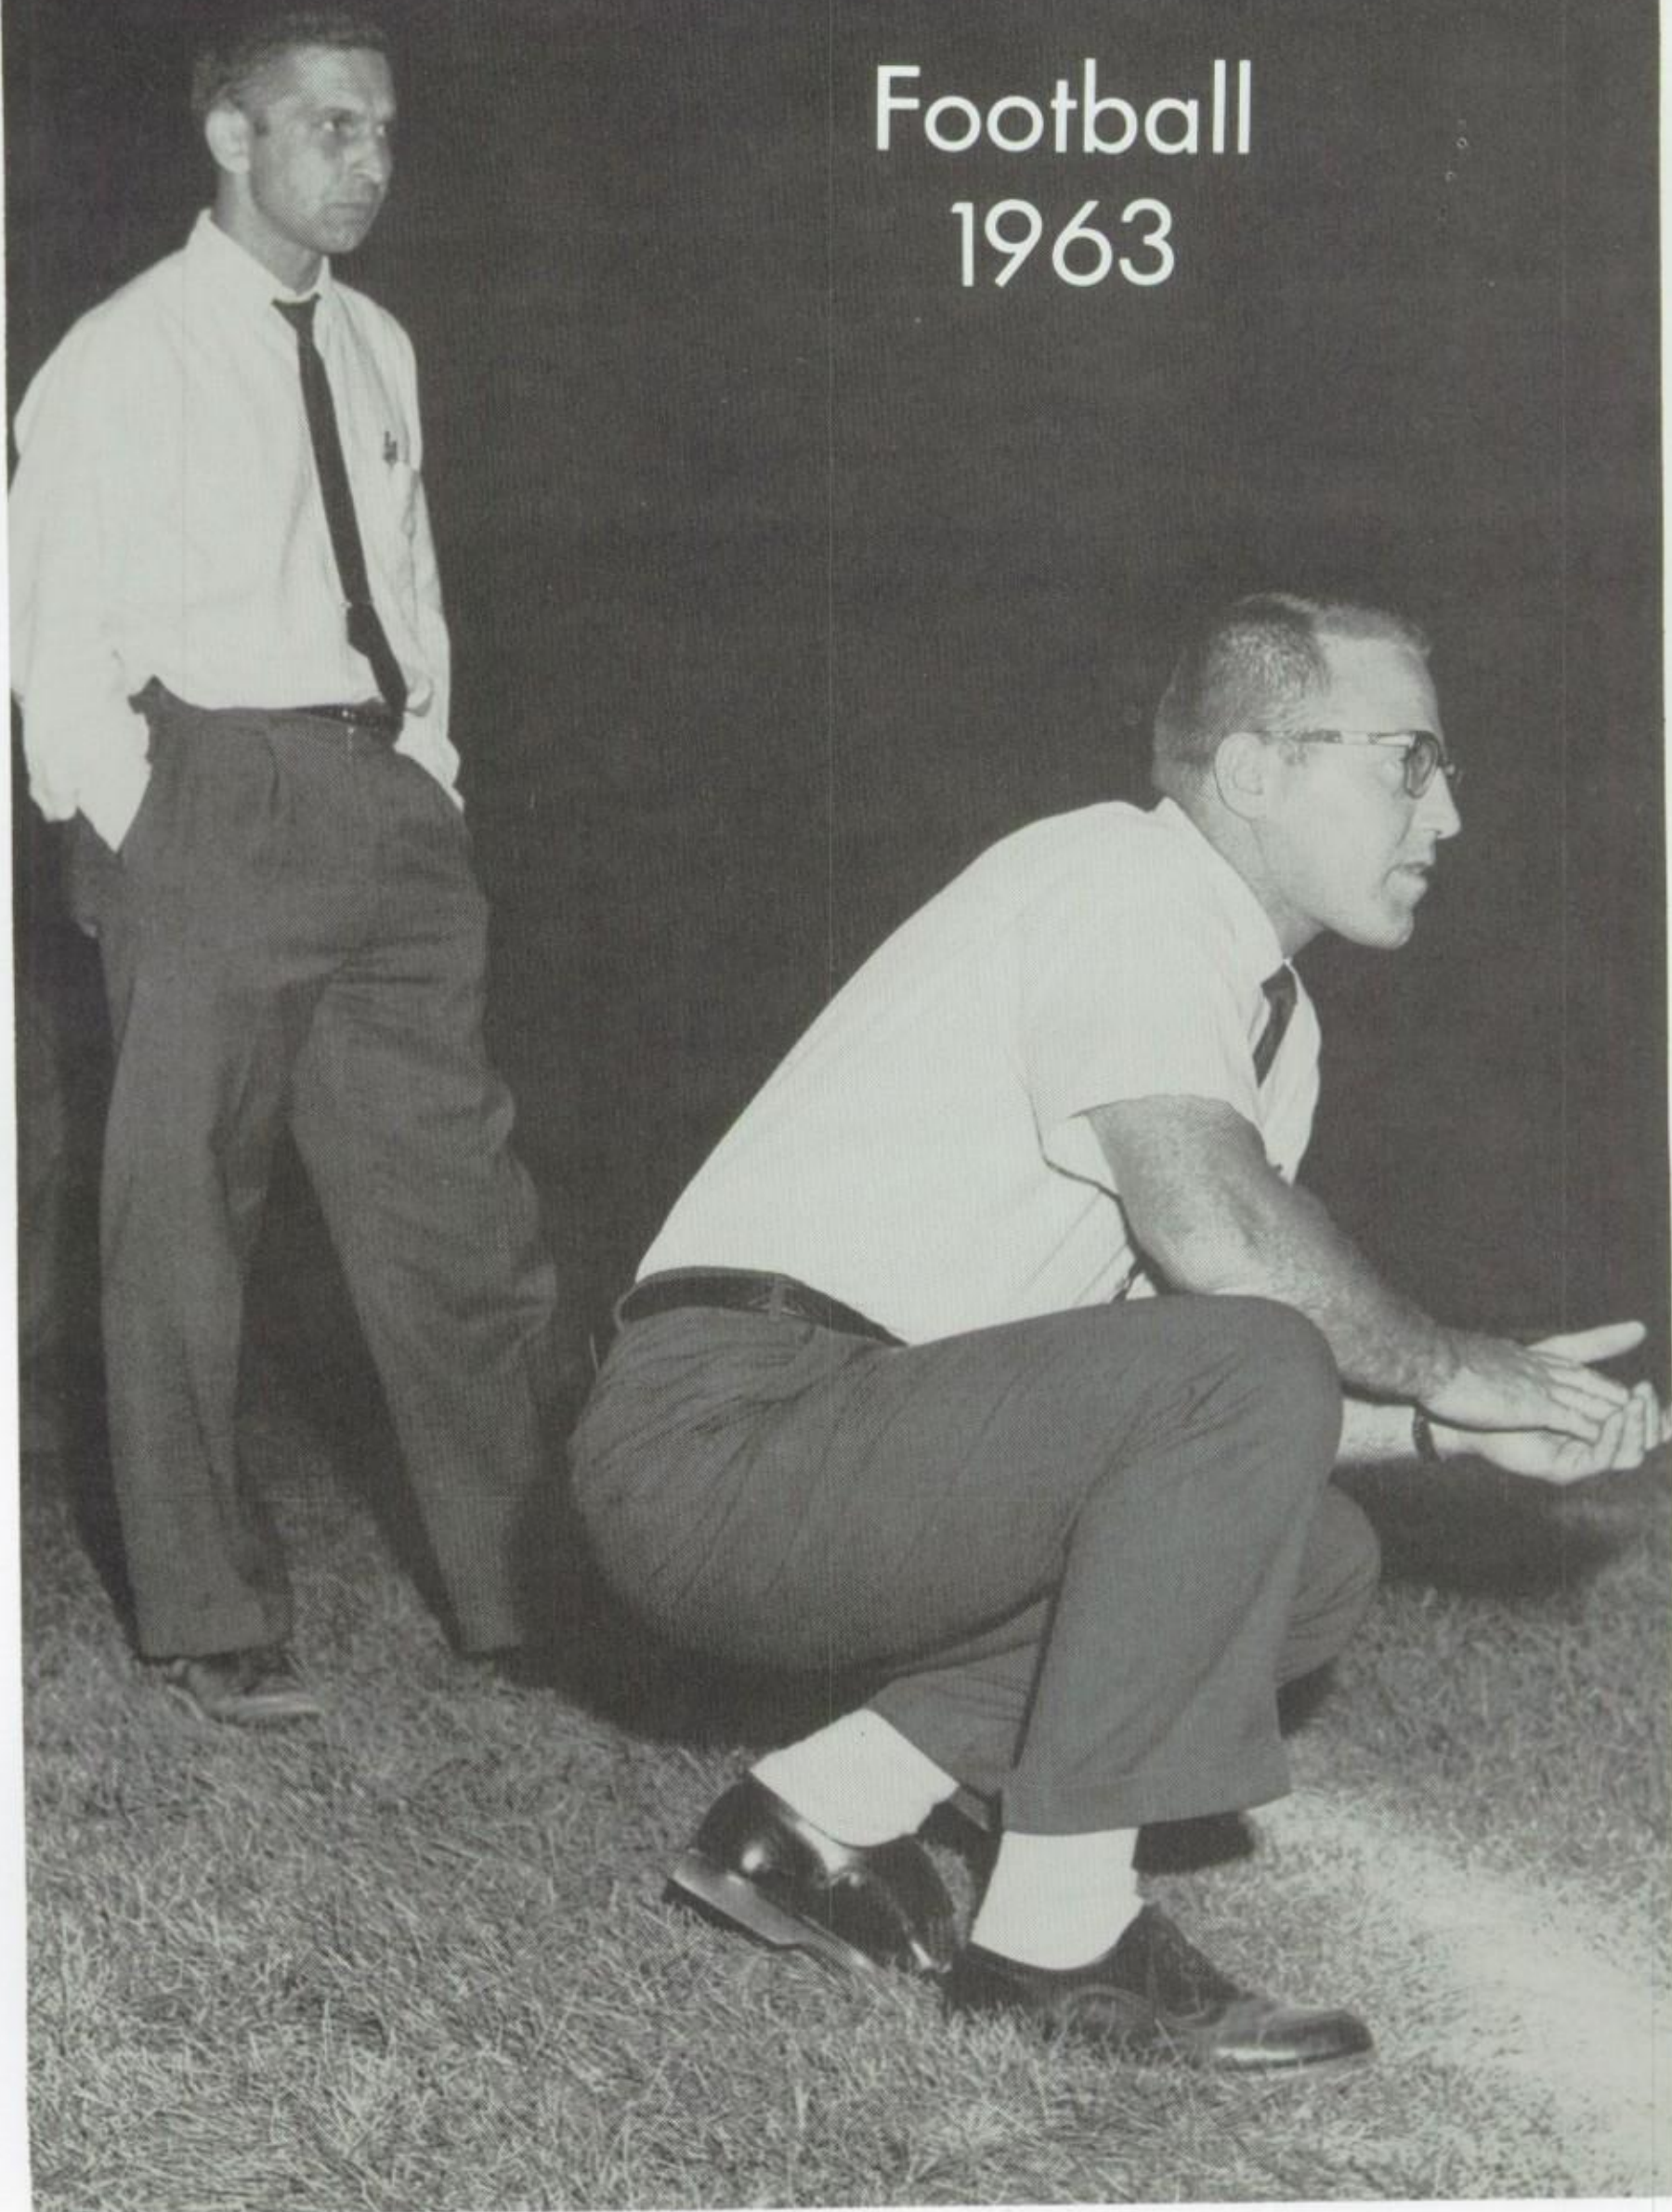

Dummy layouts transposed to the final layout sometimes create problems. Bob Kauffman tries to create an appropriate caption for a picture, while Joe Zickgraf puzzles over his copy.

Columbia City Joint High School's Golden Eagles could find their way to victory, paved and open, only once this year. They succeeded in opening the season with an 18-0 victory over Elmhurst, but could win no more. Although they gave their all, at the finish of the last quarter the scoreboard always showed C.C. at the bottom end of the score.

However, all cannot be seen by examining team records. The Eagles placed two men, John Lefever and Tom Smith, on the all-conference team with Richard Ropp, Mike Minier, Jim Fahl, and Jack Stellhorn attaining honorable mention honors for their skill on the field.

Eleven seniors and fifteen underclassmen received letters for their accomplishments in the golden Eagle uniform. John Lefever, Tom Smith, and Jim Fahl were the 1963 captains. The team was led by Coach Jerry Bush and Coach Richard Cira. Managers Phil Gross, Bob Rindfusz, Lee Himes, and Dennis Irving gave their valuable time to keep the team in trim.

1963 - 64

Columbia City Eagles Top Century Mark

The whistle blows!
The ball is in the air!

The Columbia City Eagles start their 1963-64 basketball season. In December the team defeated the Berne Bears to win their own holiday tourney for the first time. The Eagles ended their season victorious in 12 of 18 starts, losing only to such powerful teams as the Elkhart Blue Blazers and the Huntington Vikings.

Coach Hammel received his traditional shower as the Eagles captured their fifth sectional championship in six years. Host team, the Warsaw Tigers, fell prey to the high flying Eagles in a thrilling final game. This gave the Eagles the first trophy to be presented at the sectional tourney. Another star was added to the Eagle "Crown of Glory" as they scored 104 points against the Milford Trojans in the afternoon game of the sectional. This was the first time since the 1909-10 season that Columbia City has scored more than 100 points.

The reserves, under the able coaching of George Kind, finished their season with an impressive record of 15 wins and 5 losses. Their most disappointing loss was to Elkhart, when a last minute shot closed the game in favor of the Blue Blazers. The high point of the reserve season was the win over once beaten Huntington.

Coach Roger Tuggle's Freshman team, overcoming the handicaps of illness, broken bones, mononucleosis came through with a successful season. The A-team had a 13 win — 4 loss record; the B-team won 4 games and lost only once.

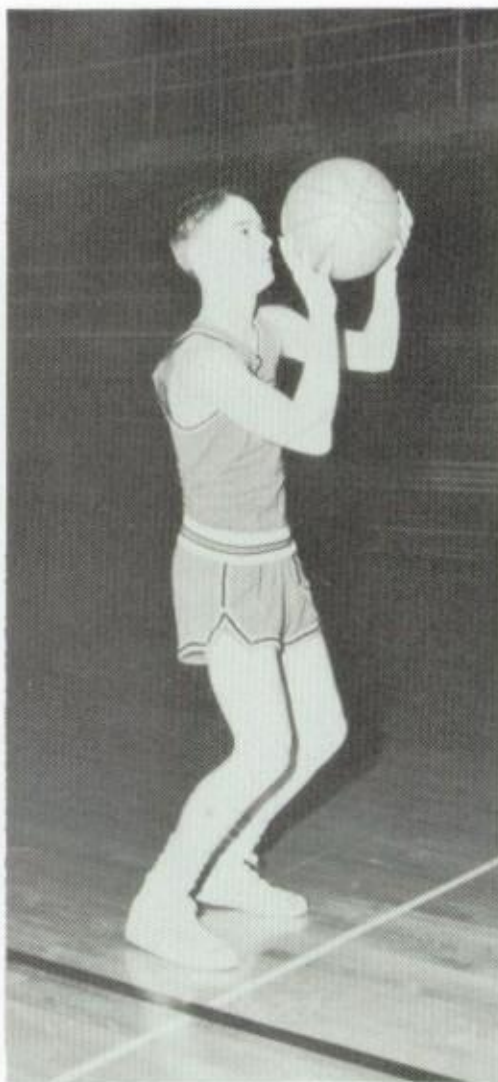

Student managers, cheerleaders, cheerblock, and fans combined in effort with the team to create the traditional "Hoosier Hysteria" in the 1963-64 basketball season.

"Teams in a huddle . . ." Coach is on the floor? Coach Hammel gives his familiar counsel of "Smile!" as the Eagles crouch together during "time out."

While there, Joanne, Judy, Sylvia, and Judee were awarded honorable mention and were received into the National Cheerleading Association. They returned to CCJHS to organize two cheerblocks and to teach the reserve cheerleaders, Kathy, Margaret, Becky, and Carol, new yells.

During the basketball season, the varsity cheerleaders wore white wool pleated skirts and white V-necked sweaters with maroon dickeys. The reserve cheerleaders wore maroon kilts and V-necked sweaters with white dickeys.

Planning card routines, making shakers for every girl in the cheerblock and long hours of hard practice were a few of the many duties of the girls throughout the year.

Kathy Arntson stops to rest after practicing some of the new cheers.

Victory Awaits at End of Track

Warsaw, Angola, Garret, Manchester, South Whitley, Larwill, Elmhurst, and Central Catholic were a few of the teams that fell to the Eagle trackmen in the '63-'64 season. Coach Ray Moore led his boys to 5th place in NEIC competition, 3rd place in their own CCHJS relays, and 4th place in the sectional.

Vic Robbins, class of '63 set a new school record for the mile run at 4:42. Also, Mike Cook and Dick Anderson, Class of '63, equalled the records in the 100-yard-dash and low hurdles, respectively. The mile relay team, consisting of Ernie Acker, Ted Hockemeyer, Doug Bennett, and Steve Sparling, set another new speed record of 3:38.2. In the Columbia City relays, new records were set in 11 out of 13 events. Columbia City's Mike Cook set the new record for the 100-yard dash at this relay.

Student managers, Bob Rindfusz and Phil Gross, assisted Coach Ray Moore with the team. The reserve record for the '63-'64 season was 6 wins and 2 losses.

This year's Eagle baseball team certainly had their work cut out for them, as they had to uphold the standards of a ball club which had won 31 games and lost but five during the past three years.

Last year's team made an unsuccessful attempt in their quest to capture the NEIC bunting for the third straight year. Nevertheless, they had a good season in all other aspects. The Eagles finished 3-4 in the NEIC and 9-4 overall for a .692 winning percentage. Highlights of the season included a double-header victory over arch-rival Warsaw and a pair of one-hit shut outs hurled by senior pitcher Keith Doudt.

Eagle Mentor Roger Tuggle had eight returning lettermen and, so it appeared, a good chance of fielding an outstanding baseball team this year.

Under the direction of Coach Dallas Parrish, the CCJHS golf team completed the 1963 season with a 2-8 record, losing to some stiff competition. At the conclusion of their spring schedule, the Eagle greensmen participated in the NEIC meet at Bluffton and placed eighth in that event. They also took part in the sectional golf tournament held at Elkhart, finishing twenty-second out of twenty-eight entries. With all lettermen returning, the Eagle golfers look forward to a very successful season.

Golf lettermen Roger Hill and Isaac Shinneman discuss their games with Coach Parrish. Ty Estlick and Jon Schubert, also lettermen, were absent at the time.

For the first time in four years, CCJHS was represented in the NEIC by a cross country team. The runners, coached by Ray Moore, participated in five meets this past season, finishing with a regular season record of one win and two losses. The victory was over Auburn and Angola in a three-way meet staged at Auburn, while the losses came at the hands of Concordia and Kendallville.

Near the end of the season, the runners placed seventh in the annual NEIC meet held at Shoaf Park, Fort Wayne, and finished fifteenth out of twenty-one teams at the Fort Wayne sectional cross-country meet.

"any kindness that i can show to any fellow creature, let me

do it now"

The lessons learned, too often, are not remembered. The immediacy of doing the kind thing is brought to me, sharply, when I least expect it. As our high school years come to an end, and we face divergent futures, realizations of my associations hold a suddenly deeper meaning. I am reminded that "the saddest words of tongue or pen are these . . . it might have been." There is no turning back, but with parting comes a new awareness of the bigness of life. Pettiness, jealousies, temperamental behavior seem out of place as I realize that NOW is the time we set out on our different paths. Therefore, "any kindness that I can show to any fellow creature, let me do it now."

Five cases of corn, sixty loaves of bread, sixty-five gallons of chili, 1,000 biscuits, twelve pounds of butter, 950 pints of milk . . . who eats all of that? 825 hungry people actually consume that much in the CCJHS cafeteria each day.

Feeding CCJHS entails more than just cooking. Supplying the "seconds table" with bread, butter, and leftovers keeps the cooks busy and the hungry ones satisfied. Menus are planned one to three weeks in advance. Part of the food is purchased from the government. In addition, each day the staff prepares lunches for the Opportunity School.

Senior Class Guidance Team

In 1960, the seniors were placed on the scroll as freshmen and members of the halls of CCJHS. Having made their entrance, the hour of Senior Domination on "Freshman Day 1960" presented itself leaving vivid memories of polished shoes and green clothing.

After showing proof of their activities and perseverance, their thoughts turned to study and serious planning for future careers. In the spring the student activities pointed toward the completion of final exams and their first year as students at CCJHS.

Their Sophomore year saw them gaining experience and engaging in numerous activities while growing into responsible citizens.

As Upperclassmen, the list of activities increased in size. A month-long magazine sales ended with thousands of dollars in the class treasury and activated plans for the Junior-Senior Prom. After months of preparation and hard work "Fantasia" was ready, a whopping success for the class of 1964.

For them, the Senior year was filled with jubilation and expectation. In the fall, the welcome mat was laid for exchange students, Eva Norro, Walter Pigge, and Alfredo Jerves from Sweden, Holland, and Ecuador. Ken Kaufman returned with Alfredo from a year's study in Ecuador as he too became a member of the class of '64.

In September, production wheels began to roll for "Bye, Bye Birdie" the Senior Class Play. Showing for four performances, the play became the first musical presented by a Columbia City Senior Class. The experience was one of long-lasting memories for '64 Seniors!

As time flew, so went the high school years in velvet-lined style. With the exchange of Senior portraits, the selection of caps and gowns and the mailing of commencement invitations, came the climax to these years at CCJHS.

Junior Class Officers

"Junior Class Begins Sale," "Juniors Nearing Goal; Campaign Half Over," and finally "Juniors End Sale By Topping Previous Records" ran some headlines in our school newspaper, the Eagle, this year. The juniors ended their annual magazine sale with a grand total of $6,703, which was less than their goal, but more than previous records. Ty Estlick led the class in sales. The money was used for the traditional Junior-Senior prom.

Many hours were spent in committee meetings, planning and decorating for the prom. Finally the big night "rolled around," and they knew that it was all worth it.

This year Steve Van Voorst was elected class president and John Bloom was vice president. Connie Fisher served as the secretary and Kaydean Sheets kept the money records. Mr. Berry and Miss Walter were kept very busy in their role of sponsors.

Very happy to have survived their freshman year, the sophomores "dove in" and became an active part of CCJHS. They supported the team by joining the cheerblock and attending the games. On February 22, they had a class party at the school.

Gaining the distinction of electing the first girl class president was one thing that the sophomores did this year. Kathy Trier was the lucky girl, and Alan Murphy was elected vice president. The position of secretary was held by Vickie Durfey and Linda Rush was the treasurer. The sophomore class sponsors were Mrs. Corbin and Mr. Moore.

Freshman Class Officers

Getting lost, going to the wrong classes, not understanding the "diagonal," and being looked down upon by the upper classmen are all a part of being Freshman at CCJHS. Friday, December 13, saw the Freshmen running around in strange costumes, wearing funny hats, and generally waiting on some senior. The traditional "Freshman Day" had arrived. During the convocation different members of the class were asked to show their talents so that the seniors could decide if the Freshmen were worthy of membership in the various extracurricular activities of CCJHS. It was decided to let them join on a probationary basis.

The Freshmen elected Tim Cook as their leader this year and Gary Kessie to assist him. Mary Roth was chosen to take notes and read the minutes, and Jo Vogely handled the money. The class sponsors were Mr. Parish and Mr. Burkett.

"for i shall not pass this way again."

Our year is ending. Time changes. I must be on my way.
When I leave this phase of my life, I hope to take along the goodness that I found here.
Behind me I shall leave the hopes, heights, strength, and humor of youth for other generations as
THE TORCH IS PASSED for I shall not pass this way again . . .

The flag waves — at half staff — over CCJHS as across the nation during the thirty days of mourning.
